Crucial Meeting Of Chamber Is Slated For Tomorrow P.M.

Program Falls Through Due to Lack Of Response To Funds Appeal.

Truckee businessmen and all others who are interested in the future of the community are urged to attend a meeting of the Truckee chamber of commerce to be held at Capitol Hall Friday evening, March 20, at eight o'clock. The meeting is not confined to members of the chamber, but will welcome everyone.

One of the principal purposes of the meeting, called by the directors of the chamber following meetings Monday afternoon and Tuesday evening this week, is for the purpose of returning money procured last fall when promises were made that an earnest effort would be made to develop a workable program if sufficient funds could be raised. The money secured was not enough to proceed with proposed campaign, so everyone who contributed at that time will be entitled to their money

A general discussion of a modified program may be a feature of the meeting with proposed plans to be outlined by the directors for modification or alteration by those attending.

The directors whom met in the two sessions this week to determine the best course to pursue in promoting this area are A. P. Fontana, V. C Shattuck, C. Edmunds, Y. Nobles W. M. Barrett, E. L. Loynd and F W. Gaiennie.

Tom Shone Is Officer In Islands

Word received here this week says in MacArthur's forces are Capt. C. W. that Tom Shone, son of Mrs. W. H. McKinley and Stanley Leahigh, both Wiley of Boca and brother of Mrs. of Reno.

Daryl Gaiennie, is an officer with the American forces on Bataan Peninsula, Philippine Islands. Shone was one of three officers in that gallant garrison who began their military careers at University of Nevada in Reno.

The other two who are serving

All three recieved their commissions as second lieutenants after completing the university's advanced course in military training. The present ranks of Shone and Leahigh are not known.

There may be other former Nevada students in the Philippines, but these three are the only ones known to Prof. Katherine Riegelhuth, recently appointed university war librarian. Prof. Riegelhuth's duty is to keep a record of U. of N. alumni and former students now serving in the armed forces.

Shone graduated from the university in 1938, receiving his commission at that time. He was affiliated with the Beta Kappa fraternity. Leahigh and McKinley did not complete their academic work at the school but both were awarded their commissions in their senior year, Leahigh in 1930 and Capt. McKinley in 1939.

BEN, ALVA TONINI HURT IN ACCIDENT IN VALLEY REGION

When a car driven by Ben Tonini, director of the Truckee Public Utility District and local grocer, skidded and overturned on the highway near Fresno Saturday, his wife, Mrs. Alva Tonini, suffered injuries which have confined her to a hospital in Fresno. and Tonini's sister, Mrs. Rose Perrera, suffered a broken arm and severe side injuries.

Tonini escaped with a bad cut over his right eye and another cut on the back of his neck. Miss Hazel Pearl Nelson, niece of the Tonini's, who makes her home with them here, was in the machine but escaped injuries.

Mrs. Tonini has a fractured shoulled blade and a severe laceration of the scalp.

According to word received by Mrs. Annie Tonini, sister-in-law of the injured man, Tonini was driving between Fresno and Moro Bay in a heavy rain and wind storm. Without warning the car skidded on the straight, smooth highway and overturned. The machine was virtually demolished.

The Tonini's expected to leave last Sunday to return home and Tonini had gone from Moro Bay, where they were visiting, to Fresno to get Miss Nelson who had recovered from an attack of measles. His sister accompanied him on the trip. The letter indicated that it would be at least another month before the well-known Truckee people would return home.

Mrs. Tonini was taken to Burnett's Sanitarium in Fresno.

MARTIN OROZ WINS SLALOM EVENT AT SUGAR BOWL SUND'Y

SUGAR BOWL, Mar. 19— Sugar Bowl held its weekly guest slalom Sunday afternoon notwithstanding the 2½ feet of new snow. The men's division was won by young Martin Oroz, Truckee's promising star, followed by Bob Sayre. Louise Ringquist of Sugar Bowl took the women's section, followed by Eleanor Drake of Berkeley.

To replace the national four-way meet which had been previously slated at the Sugar Bowl over the weekend of March 21-22, there will be a six-team meet representing the No. 2 district of the California Ski Association. Each team will enter three men and two women. The events planned are a giant slalom from the top of Mount Disney, followed by a relay race which should see plenty of action for everybody. This is the beginning of a competition among these clubs in the districts for a permanent trophy, each club being host in turn. The meet has been sceduled to further the close cooperation between the member clubs rather than in regard to having a high calibre of racing exhibited.

Such skiers as Sig Ulland, Carl and Bill Bechdolt, Bill and Helen Graham, George and Marion Dondero, Jerry Brown and Alice Hardy will be on hand to vie for the trophy.

Defense Workers See Movies Here On Vital Topics

London Bombings Hi-Lite Films Shown Here Last Saturday Night.

Approximately 100 Truckee air raid wardens and other civilian defense committeemen Saturday night attended a meeting at the Truckee grammar school auditorium during which motion pictures of vital importance were shown. The pictures were of actual bombings in London, showing the terrific loss of property and life caused by the invading Huns. Other reels, supplied through the courtesy of the Sacramento Civilian Defense Council, showed proper methods of fighting the incendiary bombs and other home protection practices.

The films were procured by Russell Farley, investigator for the state board of equalization, and C. K. Heffren, county defense coordinator and William Cassettari, chairman of the Grass Valley Defense Council discussed civilian defense programs and explained their purposes and organization. F. W. Gaiennie, local defense chairman, introduced the speakers.

As an added feature, A. P. Leitch, manager of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company here, who supplied the projctor for the show, presented a reel on the importance of the telephone in the all-out defense program. All of the pictures were highly interesting and educational.

The local committee expressed its appreciation for the cooperation given by the telephone company and the Railway Express company in making the showing possible. The projector originally planned to be used was unavoidably delayed and it became necessary to procure one owned by the telephone company which was en route from Yreka to Winnemucca. The intricate, but efficient manner, in which this machine was finally secured reflected the efforts of those who made the pictures possible.

Unable to complete a proposed program for the development and promotion of this immediate area because of lack of financial support and perhaps also due to a lack of effort on the part of themselves, the directors of the chamber of commerce have called a meeting for Friday night in which it is hoped to map out a modified program so that Truckee will still not be without the invaluable support of a booster body. It is to the interest of every businessman and woman in Truckee to attend this meeting. Money obtained by the directors last fall will be returned as promised, but the story does not and can not end there. We must by all means continue our work with a chamber of commerce or some other organization designed for the same purpose.

It was unfortunate that more people did not see the films shown through the courtesy of Russell Farley of the state board of equalization and the civilian defense council at the grammar school Saturday night. The motion pictures showed the disaster wrought in London by bombs, and contained invaluable lessons of the importance of observing certain rules in time of blackouts and what to do in event of air raids. Fortunately nearly all air raid wardens here saw the pictures and we hope they gained valuable information which will be passed on in the conduct of their duties.

Hobart & Southern Plow Reduced to Scrap Metal

The old snow plow which for many years kept the Hobart and Southern Railway between Truckee and Hobart Mills cleared of snow to permit regular schedule of trains over the line, is no more. The salvage crew, under the direction of Harry Lansberg, last week built a fire around the wooden frame of the huge plow and burned all but the iron, which will be sold as junk.

The old plow had an interesting history and if it could talk could tell tall tales of the early development of the Hobart Company, the boom days at Hobart Mills and finally the last chapter when the lumbering operations were suspended and the once thriving town of nearly a thousand inhabitants was abandoned and sold to the Los Angeles Steel and Iron Works for salvage.

by LYTLE HULL

When the present war is over there is going to be another one right away quick. It is going to start in the "Deep South" and spread rapidly through the old Confederate states and on into the Middle and Far Western states. The enemy will be the broadcasting companies of those districts, and their allies the advertisers, who are jointly responsible to the suffering populace for that babble of meaningless noises which is supposed to represent music and other interesting subjects.

When the war begins, the big companies like Columbia and NBC will doubtless declare for neutrality, claiming—not without justice—that they did their best to inject a few intelligible sounds through their hookups. They will claim that when their programs had reached as low a musical and intellectual level as they dared descend to—they were informed by the mental giants who operate many of the small stations that "their folks didn't want to listen to none of that highbrow stuff.

Now anyone of these Giants will tell you that he "has his finger on the pulse of the people"; that he "understands them and knows what they want." He will thereupon O.K. a program, sponsored by the Gumless Teeth Tooth Paste company, and gargled by a couple of antiques who thump on a banjo and are supposed to charm the radio audience back into the gun-totin' day of One Lung Annie and Jesse James. Just before you get sick to the stomach, some soap company cuts in with a promise to drive B.O. away if you will use the glycerine product of his factory. On some overlooked spot on the dial you might possibly pick up a few words of Winston Churchill's speech on the state of the war, before he is drowned out by a nassal tenor telling of his lost love through his sinus. Or you may be waiting to hear Mr. Morgenthau pronounce the death sentence on your income, when a group of imitation colored gentlemen from upper Pennsylvania, crash in to tell you the plaintive but now familiar story of Sweet Adeline; or the sound of off-stage six shooters spells the last roundup for Dirty Dick the axe murderer.

There is no public on earth as intelligent and as enlightened as the American public. Talk to anyone in the South or in the West, where the worst radio crimes are being perpetrated, and he will tell you that he considers the bilge he has to listen to most of the time, an insult to his intelligence.

There are many of the small stations which employ managers with brains and good taste and a sense of what the people really want. Their programs are always popular. (And are frequently in the English language.) Their advertising has increased greatly within the last few years. But to every one of these there seem to be about four "overlappers" which blare out deafening waves of rotgut, or a lot of schoolboy poppycock—in what is supposed to be backwoods English—which not only sicken the listeners but drown out the decent programs.

This column knows othing about the technique of radio broadcasting All it knows is that the unholy rackets for which said technique is responsible in many parts of our otherwise happy land—are so unbelievably ghastly, degenerati g, moronic, bloodcurdling and mentally destructive—that the writer can only foresee revolution, mayhem and rough treatment in the next world for those responsible for the perpetration thereof.

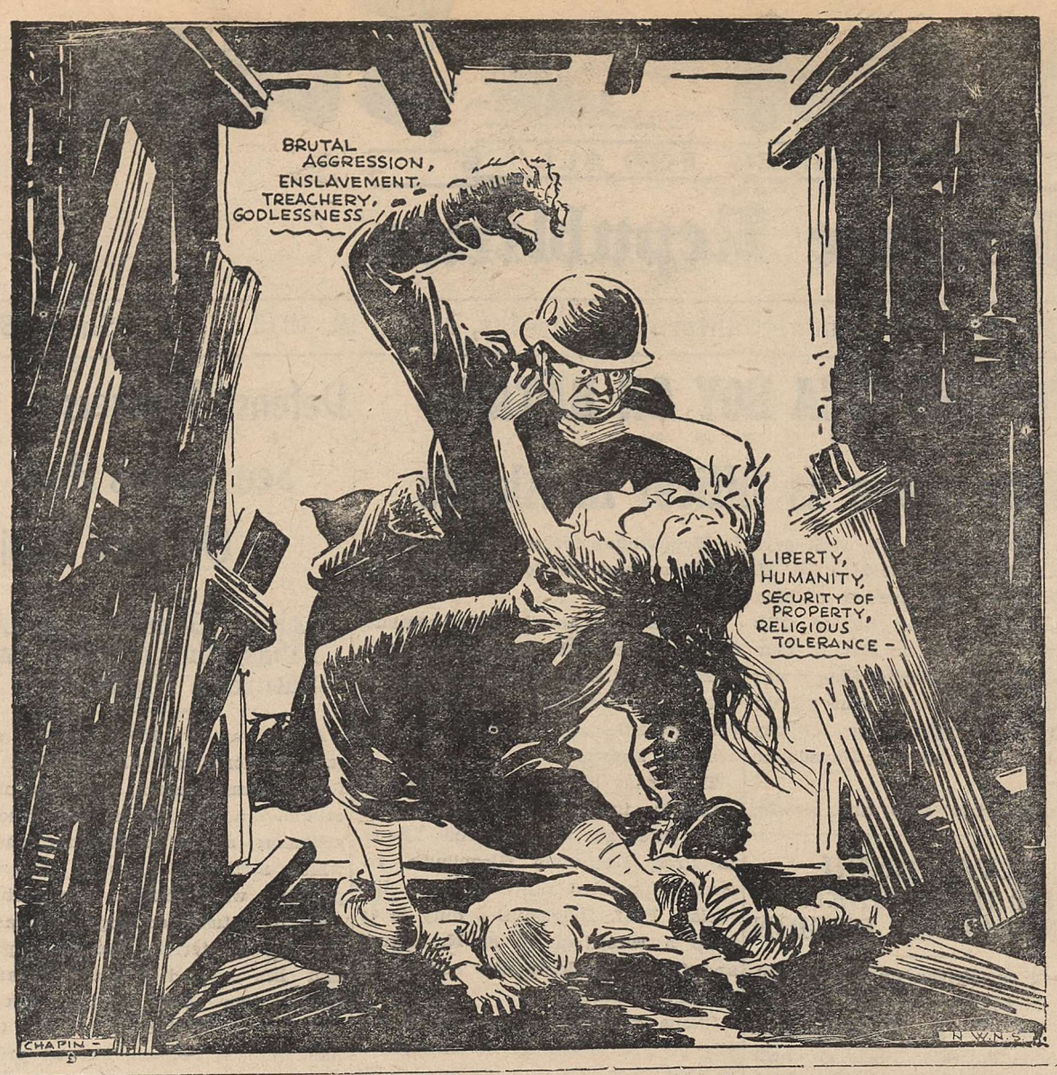
Life and Death Struggle



LIFE LINE OF LIBERTY

Beginning of construction on the planned United States-Alaska highway is most welcome news for California and the entire west.

Even a casual look at the map of the North Pacific area reveals with almost startling clarity the strategic value of Alaska to Japan as well as to this country. Like stepping stones the Aleutian Islands stretch half way across the Pacific toward Japan—stretch to within easy bombing distance of Tokio itself—to within short shipping distance of Russia's Siberian peninsula of Kamchatka, from which Russian and American bombing forces could launch devastating air bombardment of all Japan whenever the inevitable Jap-Russian conflict opens.

Conversely, as the map so plainly shows, Japanese seizure of Alaska would be disastrous to this country. Based on the Alaska panhandle, fleets of Japan's best bombers, which have a range of 4,000 miles, could raid our western cities while her naval squadrons ravaged the Pacific Coast.

Alaska is strongly garrisoned and equipped today; but to assure adequate supplies for any future eventuality America must build her own 1500-mile "Burma road" through the territory of friendly Canada—a life line not alone for defense but for the marshalling of the might that shall visit upon the Japanese home islands the doom of a thousand Pearl Harbors:

BRAZIL TAKES HER STAND

While elections in Argentina were giving the isolationists a majority in congress, the populace in the capital of Brazil—largest of South American nations and greater in area than the United States—were demonstrating their violent hostility to the Axis. The riotous demonstrations, following the sinking of several Brazilian ships by Nazi submarines, give a clue not only to the public temper but to the government's policy as well. At the Rio Conference, Brazil was among the staunchest adherents of Pan-American unity and a firm supporter of the United States in its war agains Germany, Japan and Italy. Brazil has seen that in this genuinely world-wide war, neutrality, benevolent or otherwise, has been impossible—even for those who believe themselves still neutral. There are no three sides in this war. That the bulk of Latin American republics have declared for our side is an asset beyond price.

MY PLACE IN THE SUN

The hot stove historical society met for another of sparodic sessions last Friday night before the Knights of Pythias meeting. The talk drifted to the Indians that used to live hereabouts. Engagd, beside yours truly, were Julius Litchenberger, Bill Englehart the Elder, Charlie Bander and Harold Laity...I found out that there were once four Washoe villages around Truckee, all located within a stone's throw of town...that Old Bodus was the last chief of the 300 Indians here...that they were no sissies; at one time Old Bodus personally amputated the toes on one foot that had been mangled by a train...that the villages moved, lock stock and barrel, everythime any one in it died; even if it was only a few feet...that all the Indians personal belongings were buried with them and oftimes included bicycles, beads, guns, beads, money, etc.. . Among the more interesting personalties to emerge beside Old Bodus and his son were Truckee Dick the market fisher, Nellie the washerwoman, and a centurion who made his living carrying sawdust to the hotels, bars and business houses to cover the floors...Outstanding recollection was of an Indian card game called Paiute which sometimes engaged as many as 30 squaws and braves for weeks on end and involved the transfer of money, blankets, horses and anything the players owned.

This week two-fold felicitations go forth to "Smiling Orlie" Sanders on the occasion of his birthday and wedding anniversary this week...and a more or less lusty "huzzah!" for Angelo Besio on his rapid recovery from a visit by the lady known as flu...Best wishes to Doyle McGwinn and Gene Barton upon their mutual good fortune in securing partners in the Sierra Grocery and Market.

STREET SEENS: Harry P. Digesti making deliveries for the Sierra Grocery after school...Sig Ulland as pleased as punch with his 234-pin record at the local bowl palace... Antone Dotta of Loyalton visiting Peg Hart at the bake shop...Ida Stewart's German shepherd Bismarck reminds me of a canine Ferdiand the Bull...Bert Weeden tying trout flies between shaves, getting ready for May 1...George Kamp the elder on his way to work...H. T. Langille maneuvaring the only '42 car in town into a mooring—which is the proper term considering the state of the parking lane of Commercial Row... "Honeybunch" Boyarides and Carl Bechdolt, Sr., of Tahoe visiting up and down the mall.

Truckee is to be thrice congratulated on the appointment of Elden Tonini to the local grammar school board to replace Clancy Bowers. "Pinky" is an up-and-coming young businessman, father and tax payer who can be counted on for positive and progressive activity for the benefit of the school and the town.

SIX INCH SERMON

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

Jesus the Messiah Foretells His Death.

Lesson for March 22: Mark 8:27-37.
Golden Text: Mark 8:35.

When Jesus asked the disciples the opinions of men concerning him, their answer indicatod that men ranked him among the greatest of Israel's past. But he is infinitely more than the greatest among men, and the matter of supreme importance to every man is his own opinion concerning the Christ. In answer to the sceond question, "Butw ho say ye that I am?" Peter said, "Thou art the Christ."

Immediately Jesus evidently upset the twelve by foretelling his own death. Peter's statement shows that the disciples did not think the Messiah could die. Later they were destined to leanr, as thousands since have learned, that through sufferings and death the Messiah would become the Savior.

Afterward Jesus inviated the disciples and the multitude to share the fellowship of his sufferings that they might also share in his life. "Giving is Life, Withholding is Death," is the title of a poem that finds an illustration of the Golden Text in the topography of Palestine. What Galilee receives it gives and around it is verdant life; farther south a larger sa keep all its store and there is barrenness around it and awful significance in its name.

The lesson closes with the startling question of profit and loss. Reason can give but one answer to the Master's question. Nothing can compensate a man for the loss of his soul. Let us rejoice that in Him who was made perfect through suffering we may lose ourselves evermore.

SKI-JORING ARMY STYLE

Passed by Censor

FROM men who used to spend their weekends skiing for fun, the Canadian Army has selected and trained one of the best ski-troops in the world. Utilizing the ski-joring method, in which a skier was pulled swiftly by a horse, these Canadian ski troops have learned to hitch themselves in long lines to a fast moving universal carrier which can travel at 60 miles an hour over very rough ground. Using such tactics it has been found that large bodies of ski troops can be moved swiftly across miles of snow-covered ground in a short space of time.

A WEEK OF THE WAR

War Production Chairman Nelson said man-hours now being put into military production could be doubled if all equipment involved were used 24 hours a day. He asked manufacturers for monthly reports to show how rapidly industry is being converted to war work, the degree of utilization of equipment and any factors interfering with maximum production.

The WPB reported 95 percent of the radio and phonograph industry which ceases civilian production on April 22, will be completely converted to war work before June 30. Production of communication equipment needed by the military services is expected to exceed a rate of $125 million a month by the end of the year

Chairman Nelson announced 31 regional conferences of labor and management representatives from prime contracting plants engaged in making guns, planes, ships, tanks and machine tools will be held during the next two weeks. The meetings will lay plans to meet or excxeed the production goals set by the President. The WPB ordered the production of domestic laundry equipment to be discontinued by May 15 so the entire capacity of the industry can be devoted to war production.

The WPB said during the three months following Pearl Harbor more than $72 billion had been made available for the war effort. Appropriations by Congress and additional funds made available through the RFC were larger than all the funds authorized for defense during the 18 months before the attack. The total for the 21 months amounted to almost $140 billion.

RUBBER, GASOLINE & OIL

President Roosevelt in a letter to state governors proposed speed limits of 40 miles per hour be established throughout the country to conserve rubber. He also proposed the states enact regulations requiring frequent checking of tires to insure repair and retreading at proper times. The Office of Defense Transportation and Department of Justice offered their assistance to local business enterprises seeking to pool delivery services as a means of conserving tires trucks and other equipment.

The WPB said deliveries of gasoline to service stations and bulk containers in 17 eastern states, the District of Columbia, Washington and Oregon will be cut by one-fifth beginning March 19. Service stations in the curtailment areas must limit their operations to a maximum of 12 hours in any one day and to a total of 72 hours a week; Except to provide service for certain essential civilian users. To conserve stocks of fuel oil in coastal areas, the board curtailed installation of new fuel-oil burning equipment in the same states affected by the gasoline order. Price Adminstrator Henderson asked filling station attendants to impress on motorists the necessary for saving auomobile anti-freeze for use next winter.

RATIONING

The Office of Price Administration announced men in the armed forces and those called for induction may sell their new passenger cars without restriction. The OPA placed used typewriters under a complete allocation program prohibiting their sale until April 13 but authorizing unrestricted rentals under a 60-day price ceiling based on rates prevailing on March 5. Allocations will be handled by existing auto and tire rationing boards.

SHIPPING

Maritime Commissioner Vickery reported the 1942 "Victory" ship construction program has been increased from 18 million to 20 million deadweight tons to produce 2,000 ships in two years. Admiral Vickery said U.S. ship production will be greater than all the rest of the world combined. The commission's over-all program calls for 2,877 ships to be commissioned by the end of 1943. War Production Chairman Nelson congratulated 4,000 ship-yard workers at the Bethlehem ship-building yards at San Francisco who offered to donate a Sunday's work without pay in order to get maximum production of war vessels.

AIR

The Civilian Aeronautics Administration announced expansion of its programs in order to train 45,000 men a year in elementary flight training instead of 25,000 and 30,000 men in secondary courses instead of 10,000 and to inaugurate training of 31,000 ground technicians annually. Priority in the training will be granted students eligible for appointment as aviation cadets. The Army Air Forces' first class of flying sergeants were graduated as military pilots. An Air Corps officer candidate school will be established at Miami Beach Florida, to train air corps enlisted men.

ARMY AND NAVY

Army Chief of Staff Marshall said reorganization of the Army has reduced the general staff from about 500 officers to 98 who will concern themselves primarily with planning of military operations. The War Department's Construction Advisory Committee and the Contract Negotiation Board were consolidated into the Construction Contract Board which will recommend and negotiate contracts awarded by the Engineer Corps. Navy Secretary Knox announced Admiral E. J. King, commander in chief, U. S. Fleet, will also be chief of naval operations. Admiral H. R. Stark was named commander of U. S. Naval forces in European waters.

THE WAR FRONT

United States forces in one raid on Japanese shipping sank two Japanese ships, set four more on fire and beached one. In another action U. S Naval forces sank a heavy destroyer and a large tanker and put three cruisers and one aircraft carrier out of action. U. S. forces also sank three freighters and one cargo ship, shot down five enemy bombers and destroyed three Japanese-held airdromes in New Guinea. The Navy reported 12 United Nations' warships lost in the battle for Java, including the U. S. cruiser Houston and the U. S destroyer Pope. Two U. S. tankers and two freighters were sunk in the Atlantic. General MacArtuhr reported no activity on Bataan Peninsula.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE

OCD Direcor Landis and Federal Security Administrator McNutt outlined plans for temporary hospitalization of civilians injured as a result of enemy action. The plan provides all voluntary and government hospitals will serve as casualty receiving hospitals and certain hospitals in "safe areas" will be designated as emergency base hospitals. The program will be carried out by the OCD medical division in cooperation with the U. S. Public Health Service and state and local authorities. The OCD issued a booklet suggesting safety procedures for department stores during an air raid.

PRICES

President Roosevelt, in a radio address, said the fight "against inflation is not fought with bullets or with bombs, but is equally vial...it calls for mutual good will and willingness to believe in the other fellow's good faith..." The Labor Department reported the average family's food bill jumped 0.5 percent between mid-January and mid-February. The department said rents in many defense cities were raised during the last quarter of 1941 on as many as one in every eight rented houses. The Bituminous Coal Division of the Interior Department and the OPA said they are prepared to take whatever steps are necessary to prevent wartime inflationary prices for coal.

CONVICT LABOR

SACRAMENTO, March 19—(UP)—Governor Olson has suggested to Donald Nelson, director of the war production board, that manpower of all penal institutions throughout the country be employed in the war effort. He also asked Nelson to assign to California prisons the manufacture ofs uch machine parts or other articles as their facilities will permit. California convicts now are making jute bags and burlap, stretchers, metal cots, Red Cross kit boxes, dresses and gowns and surgical splints.

In addition, 32 Folsom prison convicts volunteered to Olson as a military "suicide squad" in the "most dangerous sector where the fighting is the heaviest." There were expert riflemen, machine gunners, sharpshooters, marksmen, aviation mechanics, naval navigators, seamen, radio operators and an expert tank mechanic in the group.

CHAPTER 9

When I got back to the house the kids were home and came running downstairs and said did I know we were all going that night to hear Mamma sing. I said there had been a little change in the plans on that, and they were a little down in the mouth, but I said I had brought presents for them, and that fixed it up and we went running up to get them. I went in the nursery, where I'd left my bag. It wasn't there. Then I heard Doris call and we went in the bedroom.

"Were you looking for something?"

"Yes. Are you awake?"

"Been awake...You might find it in there."

She gave a funny little smile and pointed to the dressing-room. I went in, and there it was. The kids began jumping up and down when I gave them candy, and Doris kept smiling and talking over their heads. "I would have had Nils unpack, but I didn't want him poking around."

"I'll do it."

"Where did you go?"

"Just down to the office for the mail."

"No, but I mean—"

"Oh—Rochester, Chicago, Indianapolis, and around. Thought it was about time to look things over."

"Did you have a nice trip?"

"Only fair."

"You certainly took plenty of glad rags."

"Just in case. Didn't really need them."

Christine called the kids, and they went out. I went over to her and took her in my arms. "Why didn't you want Nils poking around?"

"Well—do you want him?"

"No."

We both laughed and she put her head against mine and let her hair fall over my face, and made a little opening in the front of my mouth and kissed me through that. Oh don't think Doris couldn't be a sweet armful when she wanted to be.

I kept letting her hair fall over my face and holding her a little tighter and then all of a sudden she jumped up.

"Oh, hell! The cocktail party!"

"What cocktail party?"

"Gwenny Blair's cocktail party. I said I'd drop in before the supper show and I had completely forgotten it. The supper show—think of that! Wasn't I the darling little trouper then? My, that seems a long time ago. And it was only this morning."

"Oh, let's skip it."

"What! And have them think I'm dying of grief? I should say not We're going, and we're going quick so we can leave before the whole mob gets there. Hurry up! Get dressed!"

I always loved Dori when she dropped the act and came out as the calculating little wretch that she really was. She heard me laugh and laughed too. "Right."

She was dressed in five minutes flat, and for once he had to wait for me.

"How do I look?"

How she looked was like some nineteen year-old flapper who had spent her fisrt day at the races cashed $27.50 on a $2 ticket, and was feeling just swell.

It wa only four or five blocks away, so we walked. On the way Doris kept damning Gwenny and all of Gwenny's friends under her breath, and saying she'd rather take a horsewhipping than go in and face them. But when we got there she was all smiles. Only a few people had shown up by then and most of them hadn't heard of it.

So they were all crowding around her with their congratulations and wanted to know what it felt like to be a big headliner. Of course, that made it swell. But Doris leveled out without batting an eye: "But I flopped! I'm an ex-headliner!"

"You—! Come on. Stop being funny!"

"I flopped. I'm out. They gave me my notice."

"How could you flop?"

"Oh please, don't ask me—it just breaks my heart. And now I can't go to Bermuda! Honestly, it's not the principle of the thing, it's the money! Think of all those lovely lovely dollars that I'm not going to get!"

She didn't lie about it, or pretend that she had done better than she had done or pretty it up in any way. She had too much sense for that But in twenty seconds she had them switched off from the horrible part and had managed to work it in that she must have been getting a terrific price to go on at all, and had it going her way. Leighton came in while she was talking and said the publicity was all wrong and he was going to do something about it. They all agreed that was it, and in five minutes they were talking about football.

She drifted over to me. "Well that's over. Was it all right?"

"Perfect."

"Damn them."

"Just a few minutes, and we'll blow...We've still got my bag to unpack."

She nodded and looked at me, and let her lashes drop over her eyes. It was Ev looking at the apple and my heart began to pound and the room swam.

Lorentz came in. He didn't come over. He waved and smiled and Doris waved back, but looked away quick "I'm a little out of humor with Hugo. He must have known. You did, didn't you? He could have given me some little hint."

I thought of what he had said, but I didn't say anything.

We got seperated then but pretty soon she had me by the arm, pulling me into a corner. "We've got to go Make it quick with Gwenny and then—out!"

"Why, sure. But what's the matter?"

"The fool!"

"Who?"

"Gwenny. I could kill her. She knows how crazy I've been about that woman and how I've wanted to meet her and now, today of all days she had to pick out—she's invited her! And she's coming!"

"What woman?"

"Cecil Carver! I can't meet her today. I can't have her—pitying me! Can I?"

"No. We'll blow."

"Ill meet you at the elevator—oh my! There she is!"

I looked around and Cecil was just coming in the room. I turned back to Doris and she wasn't there.

She was with Wilkins—Cecil, I mean. That meant she was going to sing. There wasn't much talk while Gwenny was taking her around. They piped down, and waited. I was still in the corner and she didn't see me until Gwenny called me out. She caught her breath. Gwenny introduced me and I said, "How do you do, Miss Carver?", and she said "How do you do, Mr. Borland?" and they went on. But in a minute she came bacy. "Why didn't you tell me you were coming here?"

"I didn't know it."

"Is she here?"

"Didn't Gwenny tell you?"

"No."

"It was on her acocunt she asked you."

"Her account?"

"She's wanted to meet you. So I just found out."

"Gwenny didn't say anything. She called an hour ago and said come on up—and I wanted to go somewhere...Why has she wanted to meet me?"

"Admires you. From afar."

"Where is she?"

"Back there somewhere, in one of the bedrooms, probably! Hiding."

"From what?"

"You, I think."

"Leonard, what is this? She wants to meet me, she's hiding from me—what are you getting at?"

"Gwenny asked you, as a big favor to her. But Gwenny hadn't heard about the flop, and on account of the flop, she'd rather not. Just—prefers some other time."

"And that's all?"

"Yeah, but it was an awful flop."

"You're sure you haven't told her about me? Gone and got all full of contrition and made a clean breast of it and wiped the slate clean—have you? Have you?"

"No, not a word.'"

She turned and headed back toward the bedrooms.

"Cecil!" I called.

"She had a flop, didn't she? Then I guess I'm the one she wants to talk to." She went on back.

I went over and had a dring. I needed one.

I was on m ythird when she came back, and I went over to her. "What happened?"

"Nothing."

"What did you say?"

"Told her to forget it. Told her it could happen to anybody—which it can, baby, and don't you forget it."

"What did she say?"

"Asked if it had ever happened to me. I told her it had...She's not bad, I halfway like her."

She still didn't look at me, but I had the same old feeling about her of how swell she was, and thought I'd die if I couldn't let her know anyway a little. "Cecil, can I say something?'

"Leonard, I cut my heart out after you left. I cut it out and put it in the electric refrigerator, to freeze. So if you've got anything to say you'd better go down there and see if it can still hear you. Me, I've got other things to do. I've got to be gay and sing tra-la-la, and get my talons into the first man that—"

She saw Lorentz then, went running over to him and kissed him, and pulled him into a corner. It was gay maybe, but it didn't make me feel any better.

Doris came out then and I hurried to her, and asked if she was ready to go.

"Oh—the tooth's out now. I think she's going to sing. Let's stay."

"Oh—you saw her, then?"

"She came back to powder. I didn't start it. She remembered me. She came to my recital, you may recall."

"Oh, yes. Well—did you like her?"

"Leonard, she's everything I ever thought she was and about a thousand things more. She had heard about it. My flop, I mean. One minute, Leonard, and she made a different woman of me."

"Poured oil in the wound, hey?"

"Wound, my eye! Leonard, nothing has happened! It's just something that can happen to anybody. It has happened to her; it happens to them all. You take a dring and you forget all about it."

A maid came around with a tray of Martinis. Doris took one, drank it and set the glass on a table. "So that's what I'm doing. I don't have to quit. I don't have to give up my career just because some movie audience maybe hoped for a dog act instead of something good. It's just a she said. It's all in a day's work and you just forget it—and go on."

I could hardly believe my ears. Here it had been only this morning that she was broken on the wheel and had heard the gong ring for her if anybody ever did. And now, just because Cecil had handed her out a little line to make her feel better she was tsanding there with her eyes wide open, telling herself that nothing had happened, that it was all a dream. A little chilly feeling crept in on me, and I tried to fight it off. Well, what had happened? Wasn't it all just a dream? Wasn't she the same old Doris, and wouldn't it be just about a day before we were back right where we started, with me having the career rubbed at me morning, noon and night? I wondered if that was what they call pluck To me, it was not having enough sense to know when you've been hit by a brick.

Air-Borne Infantry

Far cry from the "doughboy" who marched for days to capture his objective, are the troops whose mission it is to fly where their support is most needed, step from their transport plane and taking their place in the line, fully equipped, surprise and overpower the enemy. Accompanying them to the ground and ready for instant use are machine guns, the automatic rifles which they carry themselves, and even motorcycles and the multi-useful "peep." Airborne infantry also is equipped to disrupt communications and destroy command posts far behind the lines of battle.

WHEN PERSHING HONORED MacARTHUR 23 YEARS AGO—This picture, made on a blustery March day in Remagen, Rhenish Prussia, shows the commander of the A. E. F. pinning the Distinguished Service Medal on General Douglas MacArthur then commanding the 84th Brigade, 42nd Division. The photo is from the World War files of the U. S. Signal Corps.

This was General MacArthur's second decoration. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in action in March, 1918. He also wears the Silver Star Medal with six oak leaf clusters. A bill is pending in Congress to award him the Medal of Honor.

GOVERNOR TELLS OF USE OF SUGAR IN MUNITIONS; ASKS FOR CONERVATION

SACRAMENTO, March 19— Every time a 16-inch gun is fired, it eats up the distilled product of a fifth of an acre of sugar cane, Governor Culbert L. Olson, chairman of the state council of defense, revealed this week.

Explaining the need for the rationing of sugar for public consumption, so as to insure the increasing needs of the armed forces, both for food and for the manufacture of munitions, Governor Olson said:

"A thousand field pieces in an hour's firing burn upas much sugar as could be refined from a field two-thirds of a mile square.

"When you have saved nine-tenths of a pound of sugar, you have saved the equivalent of enough sugar alcohol to make, together with nitric acid and ordinary gun cotton, a whole pound of smokeless powder.

"Sugar is refined from cane sugar molasses. Cane sugar molasses is one of the best sources of first-class ethyl alcohol. Smokeless powder is made from ethyl alcohol.

"Sugar alcohol is used for other military purposes, too. It is used in compounding 'dope' for use on airplanes with fabric covered wings.

"We used a lot of alcohol (183,500,000 puonds) to make fulminate of mercury during the last war, but the absolutely vital use of alcohol then, as now, was in the manufacture of smokeless powder.

"Major General William Crozier who had charge of munitions for us in 1917-18, called 'smokeless powder' the best single measure of strength that is afforded by all materials of war. Our consumption in that fight totalled 330,000,000 pounds, and we'll need much more this time."

Governor Olson urged that the public refrain from hoarding sugar or any other product which Uncle Sam needs to successfully prosecute the war.

SENATE GROUP STUDIES PROBLEMS OF TOURIST TRADE IN CALIFORNIA

A plan which would provide necessary war-time recreation and offset eastern tourist trade losses by hotels, resorts and retail establishments due to war conditions, is proposed in a report released by the Kenny committee on economic planning.

Urging a vigoruos local newspaper and radio advertising campaign to stimulate recreation and "home travel" within the boundaries of the state, the interim state senate committee, composed of Senators Robert W. Kenny of Los Angeles, chairman and John Phillips of Banning has reviewed in this report the war-time problems of the tourist industry. They recommend a new "California Plan" to meet these war-time conditions.

Pointing out that normal tourist trade, which totalled $259,320,000 during 1941, will be curtailed by four factors, namely, war hazards, transportation restrictions, shorter vacations, and heavier taxes, the Kenny committee suggests that the affected lines of business train their sights on the home market.

In addition to California's large staple population, nearly a half a million out-of-staters are now engaged in local war industries, the report reveals. Most of them are receiving good wages and can afford to visit places of interest within reach in California for necessary recreation and "civilian furloughs."

Rest and recreation contribute to war-time efficiency in the opinion of experts on health and morale, and the use of California facilities, according to the Kenny committee's report, should be recognized as a legitimate and important war-time industry.

More Fact, Less Fiction Is Preference Of Soldiers

Whereas the soldier of World War One preferred D'Artagnan to all other book themes, according to the library staff of the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, soldier demands today are vastly different. The Victory Book Campaign lists technical and scientific books first, but they must have been published since 1935.

The list, by current local demand, includes books on photography, mechanical drawing, current affairs, fiction, medicine, sports, history, applied psychology, law, travel, business, geography and biography. Camp librarians include books on poetry music and playwriting. Magazines are not wanted.
